MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: Comments on ARPAC Preliminary Study "Route 110"

1. ARPAC has made many assumption and conclusions in this preliminary study. The major points seem quite reasonable except for the following:

- a. An inventory of 140 trucks is used to deliver 377 truck-loads per month over the length of Route 110.
- b. Rice is possibly shipped to North Vietnam through Laos.
- c. The 4-day air operation against the western end of Route 110 tends to indicate the possibility that Class III and V supplies may also be entering Laos from Cambodia.

2. [] agrees that "Due to a paucity of available data, operational research on this route has yielded results that are less than conclusive . . . " [] does not agree with ARPAC's conclusion that "the secondary explosions caused by the air strikes indicate that large quantities of explosive materiel, munitions, and POL are being dispatched from Cambodia to enemy units in Laos along Route 110." There is no support for this assumption regarding munitions in that ARPAC appears to accept various reports that munitions used along the route are delivered from North Vietnam and that small amounts of gasoline are delivered into the area from Cambodia.
